Monkeypox tabletop exercise like event 201:

Strengthening Global Systems to Prevent and Respond to High-Consequence Biological Threats

In March 2021, NTI partnered with the Munich Security Conference to conduct a tabletop exercise on reducing high-consequence biological threats. The exercise examined gaps in national and international biosecurity and pandemic preparedness architectures—exploring opportunities to improve prevention and response capabilities for high-consequence biological events. Participants included 19 senior leaders and experts from across Africa, the Americas, Asia, and Europe with decades of combined experience in public health, biotechnology industry, international security, and philanthropy.

The report: [link to www.nti.org \(secure\)]

Developed in consultation with technical and policy experts, the fictional exercise scenario portrayed a deadly, global pandemic involving an unusual strain of monkeypox virus that first emerged in the fictional nation of Brinia and spread globally over 18 months. Ultimately, the exercise scenario revealed that the initial outbreak was caused by a terrorist attack using a pathogen engineered in a laboratory with inadequate biosafety and biosecurity provisions and weak oversight. By the end of the exercise, the fictional pandemic resulted in more than three billion cases and 270 million fatalities worldwide.

Mpox (formerly known as monkeypox) is a disease caused by infection with a virus, known as Monkeypox virus. This virus is part of the same family as the virus that causes smallpox. People with mpox often get a rash, along with other symptoms. The rash will go through several stages, including scabs, before healing. Mpox is not related to chickenpox.

Mpox is a zoonotic disease, meaning it can be spread between animals and people. It is endemic, or found regularly, in parts of Central and West Africa. The virus that causes mpox has been found in small rodents, monkeys, and other mammals that live in these areas.

Discovery and History

Monkeypox virus was discovered in 1958, when two outbreaks of a pox-like disease occurred in colonies of monkeys kept for research. Despite being named “monkeypox” originally, the source of the disease remains unknown. Scientists suspect African rodents and non-human primates (like monkeys) might harbor the virus and infect people.

The first human case of mpox was recorded in 1970, in what is now the Democratic Republic of the Congo. In 2022, mpox spread around the world. Before that, cases of mpox in other places were rare and usually linked to travel or to animals being imported from regions where mpox is endemic.

The World Health Organization renamed the disease in 2022 to follow modern guidelines for naming illnesses. Those guidelines recommend that disease names should avoid offending cultural, social, national, regional, professional or ethnic groups and minimize unnecessary negative effects on trade, travel, tourism or animal welfare.&#8239;The virus that causes it still has its historic name, however.

You may feel comfortable with murdering others and deciding who lives and who dies but i dont. Besides, sounds like God has this in hand, and I'd prefer to listen to him for he states:

Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Matthew 5:5

I don't claim to be worthy of that but this his creation and his son will rule it. That's what I listen to.

their own document from 2022 raises question marks as they indicate africa but yet according to this report the biggest infection rate for 2022 was europe which was virtually nothing compared to Africa and yet africa has the 3 deaths for it in total that year.

Of interesting note...

I bought stock in Bavarian Nordic @ around $10 the day the monekeybox outbreak happened in 2022 reading it on GLP, and getting a feeling it was something. Of course the news kept growing, and so did the stock. I sold around $16ish dollars as the news and cases started to wane, and everyone realized it was just a sex orgy outbreak.

But looking at the stock...you could have bought in a few months before at $6...which if you were an elite in the know...Selling at the hioh netted you a $12 return on every stock, not bad!

Went back down to 7 recently...but then NEW MONKEYPOX! Yea!

From initial news if you were paying attention to now currently today...its rocketing...last week its rised $3, 5 overall if you had inside intel from the current low.

How high will it go this time?

Im not a profiteer by trade, but its silly not to make money by having some brains and seeing trends before others do...
