YOUR CDC AT WORK

May 3. Backgrounder. <http://www.nomorefakenews.com/>

Many of the current pronouncements about SARS, and before that, the pronouncements about smallpox and anthrax, come from the US Centers for Disease Control (CDC), located in Atlanta.

This federal agency is a division of the US Public Health Service, which in turn falls under the Dept. of Health and Human Services. Which is under the president.

You may recall that the CDC, in 2001, drew up that model for emergency health powers, which, in various forms, has been passed by, or is working its way through, a number of state legislatures.

The plan would give state governors wartime powers to quarantine, arrest, limit travel, and forcibly medicate and vaccinate citizens, if some "new disease outbreak" comes down the pipeline.

So, just for the record, I want to point out that the CDC sends some of its people to Langley to get training from the CIA, and when these employees return to Atlanta, they sport new security classifications.

In fact, like every other federal agency, the CDC issues top secret and other clearances to certain of its workers.

The CDC runs something called the Epidemic Intelligence Service (EIS), which is basically a rotating list of doctors who can be sent out into the field on a moment's notice to investigate outbreaks of disease.

These doctors are naturally programmed to "look for the new germ."

I think you would be hard pressed to find instances in which the EIS comes up with some environmental cause. Like pesticides, like medical drugs, like vaccines, like grossly improper sanitation, like very poor nutrition.

In this sense, the EIS and the CDC function to write cover stories which will conceal health damage caused by the above factors.

The sins of the CDC have reached far and wide. Here is just one scandal the agency has been involved in:

1980-91. Along with Kaiser Permanente, the CDC carried out a measles-vaccine study in Los Angeles. 1500 poor inner-city children were used as guinea pigs to test a Yugoslavian vaccine that was also being tried out, en masse, in Mexico, Haiti, and Africa.

In LA, in October 1991, the whole experiment was shut down, as children were suffering from the shots, and as reports were leaking in from Africa about baby deaths there.

The Africa study was co-sponsored by the CDC and Johns Hopkins.

The Africa experiment was based on the insane idea that every sanitation and nutrition problem in babies could be overcome by inducing the formation of antibodies via a vaccine.

I also point out that the CDC has been responsible for endlessly expanding the definition of AIDS, by adding so-called AIDS indicator diseases to its list of "AIDS symptoms." For example, cervical cancer in women. This ongoing fraud has brought about a situation in which more and more people have been prescribed AIDS drugs like AZT. AZT attacks the immune system and every other cell in the body, because it is, in fact, a failed chemotherapy medicine. (Watch out for its experimental use in SARS.)

Currently, the CDC is trying to avoid admitting that the coronavirus cannot be the cause of any disease. It is pretending that, even though at the moment, no SARS cases in Canada are showing the virus, its own fraudulent research is sound and proper---and vaccines against the coronavirus should be developed as quickly as possible.

My own Vegas odds state that, if the CDC vanished from the face of the Earth tomorrow in an unprecedented spacetime warp, it's 1-900 that general health in the US would register an immediate upswing.
